that meeting, the result would be different. They would be asked the question: "Why not form a Steamboat Company of Memphis men, build our own steamboats here in Memphis, and do a 'carrying trade' as well as people of other places? The river is open to us—why not enter into this business ourselves? Tell General Forrest to cut down some good oak timber and bring it here on the Little Rock railroad, and sell it to the Memphis people, and they will buy it as readily as they will buy the goods of other places. That's the only way to make Memphis a city."

AGRICULTURAL, MECHANICAL AND COMMERCIAL SOCIETY.
EDITORS LEDGER: The Chamber of Commerce, as now composed, is a body without blood. It neither talks, acts or feels like a thing of life. It might indeed be called a "public organ," for the accommodation of every shrewd speculator who can blow wind into its lungs and draw out soft, soothing strains by an ingenious working of the bellows. Some-times, as you are aware, those "strains" affect a few "old fogies," whose "grand idea" is to sit forever on curbstones and rule the elements of human nature with "twaddle and twang," but they seldom (to the great annoyance of the bellows-blowers and manufacturing masses, who merely smile at such music, or, upon reading in print a glowing description of the "praiseworthy performance," re-mark: "Go on with your show—you'll soon play out!")

And, in the "new order of things" forced upon the people of this section of the Union, such trifling nonsense must "play out" ere Memphis can take a firm, solid and impressive step toward great-ness, prosperity, or anything else becom-ing a city.

Every "old resident" is aware that in the "good times" gone by the real owners of the soil, blessed with an abun-dance of everything they needed, paid little attention to "enterprises" them-selves, but took the words of penniless politicians and speculators as "gospel truth" on such topics, and furnished money for "projects" without many questions. Consequently comparative strangers and shrewd chaps generally "slipped in" and took control of nearly all "enterprises," having no other object in view than the "feathering of their own nests." Well, what is the result? A civil war comes and sweeps away the old order of things, paralyzes the owners of the soil and leaves them un-able to help themselves beyond a dull existence, but at the same time opens a way for another crowd of harpies, who immediately flock into all kinds of offices and commence "feathering their nests."

Since the amalgamation of the "two cities," Pinch and Pickering, this "feath-ering" system has been very much ad-mired, as the old "records," if brought into light, will show, and the grand re-sult, in my mind, that Memphis is a quarry where men dig gold and carry or send it off to enrich other places. This may astonish many, but when I ask any one how many "busi-ness" establishments in Cincinnati, St. Louis or New York, and whose monthly earnings are not transmitted to these places—how many "shops" here can sell home-made articles—how many "insurance agents" who don't send large sums up the river quarterly—how many "steamboat agents" who represent a single Memphis company—how many steamboats have been built near the bluff for the Memphis trade—how many mechanics out of the four or five thousand employed two years ago at $5 to $8 a day in Memphis now—what an-swer can be made? None save that, under the "feathering" system, Mem-phris has been a large "trading point" instead of a city—a place to land at, make money in, and leave when one's pockets are full.

A single illustration. The last "the-oretical session" at the New Memphis Mr. Edwin Booth made $5000, which he is likely to spend in the completion of a new theater in New York; Mr. Edwin Forrest made a large sum, which he left in New York also; Miss Lotta made a few thousand, which went into government bonds, Lady Don made "pile" in England, and so with the whole series of "stars," who were so "extensively patronized," and who went off grinning with bundles of "green-backs" in their wallets, while poor Thompson, the Memphis Manager, was left in the "dumps" because he couldn't make enough to pay his "stock." Of course none of this was Thompson's fault; it was only part of the programme of the "feathering" system, that don't allow Memphis to have anything that's home-brewed, home-made, home-baked, home-spun, or home anything.

As a further evidence of a non-appreciation of the "home article," I may mention the failure of the Fanny Ther-ton Lectures, given for the purpose of charity. Do you wonder, then, why every body you meet in the street is a walking advertisement of a Boston dry goods house?—or why her husband, or brother, or father, who may be the most impassioned "Copperhead" in existence, and is always "throwing off" heads of epithets against the Yankees, wears Lowell pants, coat and vest, Boston boots, New Haven shirts, Concord necktie, and Salem hat? The only thing I wonder at is that our lively stable keepers don't send their horses up to Pittsburgh to be shod, as they could do so with as good propriety and as great economy as the City Council, some years ago, sent some six or eight thousand miles away for a fence for Court Square.

I have said this much because "leaders among the people" may perform a good work by pouring blood into the body of the Chamber of Commerce and chang-ing it into a new and living institution—an Agricultural, Mechanical and Com-mercial Society. Such an organization, composed of sensible farmers, intelli-gent master-mechanics and enterprising merchants, would, if properly con-ducted, prove a great blessing to Mem-phris, and is the only combination of men that can restore, revive, create, or keep up prosperity. Their interests depend on each other, the success of the farmer in raising large crops giving a stimulus to the export and import trade of the merchant and opening a market for the sale of the manufacturer's goods, while the success of the merchant and manufacturer, thus brought about, creates a demand for labor, which being supplied, adds to the population, thereby increasing consumption and benefiting the farmer. The establishment of this character can have for its objects:

1. County Agricultural Fairs and County Manufacturing Fairs, with a view of improving home produce and encour-aging home manufacture.
2. Lectures by practical men on Land Culture, Fruit Culture, Vegetable Cul-ture, Grain and Grass Growing, Cotton Raising, Cattle Raising, and general Farm Work; Lectures on Street Paving, Water Works, House Building, Manu-factures and Mechanics; Lectures on Rail-roads, Steamboats, Navigation of the Mississippi, Commerce and Trade, and such kindred subjects as will be useful and interesting to the interests combined and help to restore harmony among all classes of the community.
3. The establishment of a System of Labor to cultivate the soil, without which no country can thrive or prosper.
4. Encouragement to good Mechanics who make Memphis their permanent home, a thing now totally neglected.
5. Security to all settlers, and a de-crease of taxes by decreasing the num-ber of office-holders and papers, and making them work at some "respectable calling."

All these objects can be attained, and the prosperity of Memphis placed on a sure foundation, if a few enterprising, practical men take the matter under consideration and work with a thorough understanding of the task, not for the benefit of a few speculators, who want their noses everywhere, but for the good of the whole community. Of course nothing can be expected of blockheads; but this is a time when blockheads must be kicked out of the way, and men of intelligence and practical skill brought out.

Platform of the Tennessee Democracy.
1. The Conservative men of Tennessee, putting aside all questions of party, are in favor of the title of "Democrat," and formally unite themselves with the Democratic party as it is now constituted.
2. The question of the right of a State to secede from the Union has been decided by arms, and that decision should be accepted as final and conclusive.
3. Nevertheless, while the Constitution makes the Federal Government a creature of the States, and the States are creatures of the people, the States have the right to secede from the Union, and the people have the right to secede from the States.
4. The Federal Government is a creature of the States, and the States are creatures of the people. The Federal Government is a creature of the States, and the States are creatures of the people. The Federal Government is a creature of the States, and the States are creatures of the people.

More Democratic Victories.
The charter election in New London, Conn., was held on Monday. The contest in the city was a sharp one. Over 1400 votes were polled, or within 300 of the full vote. The Democrats carried New London at the late election by a majority of twenty-six. Now they elect their Mayor, Hon. F. L. Allen, by seventy-four, and (with a single unimpor-tant exception) their entire city ticket—Aldermen, Councilmen, Stewards, and all. Waterbury, Connecticut, also held its annual election on Monday, and the Democrats swept the board, electing the Hon. John Kendrick mayor by one hundred and eighty-five majority. The vote was not a full one; had it been, the Democratic majority would have been double. The Democrats also elect the city officers and nearly all the aldermen and members of the Common Council. And so the ball rolls on. All the elections show that the people are determined to reject Radicalism.—Cincinnati En-quirer, June 15.

A reporter of the New York Herald lately visited Mr. Pendleton, in Ohio, and attempted to get him into conversation for the purpose of publication. Mr. Pendleton's reply—the reporter tells the story himself—was: "As a friend, sir, I shall be happy to converse freely with you on any and all political subjects, but will not do so for the sake of having it printed. These conversations between correspondents and public men are very ridiculous."

Popularity of Mr. Pendleton.
From the Nashville Gazette.
The New York Herald has been in-quiring into the causes of the remark-able popularity of Mr. Pendleton. It has sent a special messenger to the West to ascertain it. It has received a long let-ter from its correspondents, and editorially, though strongly opposed to Mr. Pendleton as a Presidential candidate, is constrained to say:
But wherein lies the wonderful strength of Pendleton, this Samson of the West, among his people? He is a man of fine abilities, good presence, high character, genial manners, and in his immediate surroundings a man of great personal popularity. These things, however, have not made him the presidential favorite of the Western Democracy. They have rallied around him as the embodiment of their ideas on the political questions of the day. He believes in State rights and State sovereignty touching the question of suffrage, and so do they. He holds, and so do they, that for the fifteen, sixteen, or seventeen hundred mil-lions of five-twenty bonds afloat, the holders have no right to demand gold in redemption, that they must be satisfied with the national paper, declared by a legal tender, in payment of all debts not specially by law excepted. He demands the abolition of the national banking system as a useless and costly excrescence, the taxing of the Govern-ment bonds, and provisions, through re-trenchment and economy, for a sinking fund, with a view to the extinction of the national debt within five or ten years; and to all these propositions the followers of Mr. Pendleton respond: "Amen and amen. Even so shall it be!" He might go farther without diminishing the number of his adherents; and doubt-less their support of his platform arises largely from the belief that it means more—much more—than it says.

The Ballot and the Bag.
To Wendell Phillips belongs the honor of furnishing the most perfect picture of the enfranchised freedmen ever given. Said he, in closing his recent speech be-fore the Anti-Slavery Convention: "There he stands, with the bag for his food in his right hand, and his ballot in his left, and until he has all of his rights under the anti-slavery party will not be fulfilled."

Truly said, old war horse, "his ballot and his bag," ready at all times to ex-change the former for the latter. He is not entitled to franchise upon the qual-ity of his head, but upon those of his belly. How boundless the charity of a party that thus gives the means of sal-ving the appetite. Between a Japanese Boon and a Chinese Joe, and the ra-vensome negro, as pictured by Mr. Phillips, we cannot see a particle of difference, other than in the nationality of their work-shops.—New Orleans Times.
